The Privacy Rule

The HIPAA Privacy Rule establishes national standards to protect individuals' medical health information and applies to health plans, health care clearinghouses, and those who conduct certain health care transactions electronically. The Rule requires appropriate privacy of personal health information, and sets limits and conditions on the uses and disclosures of such information without patient authorization. The Rule also gives patients the right to examine and obtain a copy of their health records, and to request records and other personal health care providers that take safeguards to protect the information and disclosures that may be made over their health information, and to request corrections.

The Privacy Rule is located at 45 CFR Part 160 and Subparts A and E of Part 164.
